Blood Poison
THE BANE OF HUMAN LIFE,
Driven Out of the System by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I was a great sufferer from a most persistent blood disease, none of the various medicines I took being of any help whatever. Hoping that change of climate would benefit me, I went to Cuba, to Florida, and then to Saratoga Springs, where I remained some time drinking the waters. But all was no use. At last, being advised by several friends to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I began taking it, and very soon favorable results were manifest. To-day I consider myself a perfectly healthy man, with a good appetite and not the least trace of my former complaint. To all my friends, and especially young men like myself, I recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if in need of a perfectly reliable blood-purifier."—JOSE A. THE HOME OF WASHINGTON.

[The following lines were written on the back of a picture at Mount Vernon by Rev. William Day.]

There dwelt the Man, the flower of human kind,
Whose visage mild bespoke his nobler mind.

There dwelt the Soldier, who his sword ne'er drew
But in a righteous cause, to freedom true.

There dwelt the Hero, who ne'er killed for fame,
Yet gained more glory than a Cæsar's name.

There dwelt the Statesman, who, devoid of art,
Gave soundest counsels from an upright heart.

And, O Columbia, by thy sons caressed
There dwell the Father of the realms he blessed;
Who no wish felt to make his might a praise,
Like other chiefs, the means himself to raise;
But there retiring, breathed in pure renown,
And felt a grandeur that disdained a crown.
—"Beacon Lights of Patriotism."

HUMBLED.

Three centuries ago an old Latin city slept on the border of a great blue gulf over which the scattering sails floated like lazy birds, and in whose clear depths were mirrored the green hills crowned with half ruined temples of gleaming marble. The inscriptions of the conquering Cæsars were yet clear upon its massive walls, along which paced watchmen whose chanting cries mingling with the tolling of the monastery bells marked the flight of the hours between the darkness and the dawn. There were great aqueducts traversing the landscape and broken columns shining white through the foliage of venerable trees, telling of the faroff time when the gods reigned yet on Olympus and the city was in Aphrodite's keeping. Surrounded by olives and somber pines, clinging to the summit of a granite cliff high up where the eagles spread their mighty wings, the nine proud towers of the chateau of Pierreluce pierced the sky.

But the place was sad since the day when its lord had departed to wage war upon his enemies and had given up his soul in a valiant but losing fight. He left to mourn him a maiden who was his widow without having been his wife, who had known no other caress than the kiss of adieu which he had pressed upon her forehead as he rode away.

This maiden was called Bathilde, and she was very beautiful. Her skin was white as the petals of a lily. Her eyes were blue, and the light in their profound depths was as changeful as the tints of clear evening skies in autumn. Sometimes they shone hard and cold, chilling the heart; then they would brighten magically and exert such subtle influences over those on whom they rested that the rustiest hearts would be drawn to her. Her neck was like a slender ivory column, and around it she wore a thread of gold whose ends were joined by a great amethyst. Her hair was dark and soft as a silken mesh, and there were coppery gleams in it where the sunlight fell. When uncoiled it hung almost to her slender feet, covering her like a splendid mantle.

She loved no one.

She seemed as cold and passionless as a statue with folded hands carved upon a tomb. The poor people, the vassals who tilled the soil, the merchants of the city, the clerks and soldiers, all feared and hated her because she was inexorable in her unjust and wicked decrees, which made their lives a burden. She was proud as any pagan empress in her radiant, splendid beauty, so much so that she scarcely bowed her head during the elevation of the host, and not once had she accused herself of a fault or knelt as others did before the white robed monks who officiated in the chapel by the donjon.

And the angels who watch over the souls of mortals, and who traverse the trackless fields of air as lightly as some wandering strain of music mounts upward from the earth despaired, seeing her so deeply sunk in her sinful pride, blossoming like a pale rose in a gloomy desert place, and they resolved to chasten her.

Late one afternoon in the time of harvest, when the air was full of the drowsy hum of insects, and the wind was stilled, as the distant sea reflected the sunset glory of the sky before the postern of the chateau appeared a band of cavaliers with dusty armor and gleaming lances. At their head upon a charger which pawed the ground and neighed was he whom the courts of love had named Foulques the Fair.

Indeed, with his broad, powerful shoulders, his tall figure and godlike face and clustering golden curls framing his low forehead, the lord of the isles and of Theoule shone in the twilight beautiful as a rising star.

From a window, drawing aside a corner of one of the panes of colored vellum, Bathilde, trembling, fascinated, her hands pressed upon her loudly beating heart, regarded the unknown guest that the fates had sent her. What was this madness which pervaded all her being, which gave her an almost irresistible impulse to throw herself upon the broad bosom of this man, whom she had never seen before that sweet, resplendent summer evening, which made hungry for love her maiden heart? She blushed. For the first time she feared she was not beautiful enough in her somber robes of widowhood.

During his stay in the chateau she entertained him with as much magnificence and formal preparation as if he were king or pope. She regaled him with sumptuous banquets and made herself humble before him. For his amusement she would have burned the city and the ships straining at their mooring rings, and she used every art she knew to keep him with her and turn his thoughts from war and fill his heart with her increasing love.

And Foulques loved her in return as much as she worshiped him, suffering himself to listen to her voice, clear and vibrant as a violin, instead of to the call of duty, and dreamily gazing into the fathomless depths of her glorious eyes, where his image was reflected. He felt that he could not live without Bathilde, and she knew that she would die of grief if parted from him.

One day messengers came to him with tidings that the infidels ravaged once more in Provence, destroying the cities and fields and carrying the people into slavery. Then the lord of Theoule, without daring to turn his head, remounted his charger, and in silence and tears the lovers parted.

Long time, unwearicdly, without vain lamentations, straining her poor eyes until they grew dim with watching from dawn till twilight the always empty road and changeless horizon, Bathilde awaited the return of her heart's lord.

Days and weeks went by, yet no tidings came. Seated at the window from which she had first seen him in the shadows of the summer evening, she wept in silence, and so many and bitter were her tears that twin furrows showed themselves in her cheeks. She slept no more, but wandered through the vast halls and the forest like an uneasy spirit. She became, little by little, so thin and pale that her garments hung fluttering upon her. She felt neither hunger nor thirst, and her brain held no other thought than that he loved her no more or was dead, and her heart grew lifeless under this double wound.

She ordered thrown into the sea all her mirrors of silver and of steel. The reflection of her face frightened her like that of a specter. She started at the least noise and grew faint with apprehension whenever a band of horsemen showed itself at the turning of the highway. In person she questioned every pilgrim and traveler and beggar that came to the castle gate. Kneeling upon the hard, cold flagstones of the church, she prayed to God and the Virgin and the saints with ardent fervor for the return of him she loved. She emptied her coffers in alms and pious donations to the abbeys and the monks. She arrayed the images of the Virgin in her robes of silk and brocade, giving with such feverish haste that she was soon reduced to clothe herself in coarse cloth and went as miserably clad as a beggar.

One day, after she had given until she had nothing more left to bestow—neither ring nor golden belt nor sack of coins—a monk, escaped by a miracle from the Moors, told her that the lord of the isles, surprised in an ambuscade, as was of old the valiant Roland at Roncesvalles, alone against a hundred and weakened by ten wounds, had fallen into the hands of his eternal enemies, and that they demanded for his ransom a thousand golden pieces and ten boxes of precious stones.

What could she do? How could she gather so much gold and jewels? He lived, he pined for her. He felt but the one passion every hour, and she could not succor him. She could not find such a sum. After reflecting two days and nights, fasting alone like one who walks in sleep, Bathilde descended to the city.

It was Palm Sunday. The bells rang full peal. The sun shone from a cloudless sky upon the calm, blue sea. The pennons adorning the masts of ships fluttered joyously in the gentle breeze. In the city's streets and squares and along the harbor wall the fresh, bitter odor of broken olive and laurel branches and the scent of sweet marjoram floated upon the soft, warm air of the morning. Maidens were singing. The common people were in gala dress. But as the crowds came to the great open porch of the cathedral all—soldiers and priests, commoners and nobles alike—gathered about a single object.

Kneeling among the wretched mendicants, the crippled, the insane and the blind, into whose eyes no longer entered the blessed daylight, was a woman, pale as one who has been stricken dead with shame and horror. She held out her hands imploring alms in a voice broken with sobs, begging the ransom of Foulques the Fair.

All knew the supplicant. They elbowed each other to catch a glimpse of the haughty Countess Bathilde, who had been so hard and merciless, who had abused them as if they had been beasts, who had ruled over them as the proud towers of her castle seemed to over the land and sea.

Growing bold, believing her mad, they assailed her with insults and railing. They derided her as they threw in her face pieces of copper and bits of flint and burst into laughter at her figure bent in anguish, and her fevered, staring eyes, where the wells of tears had run dry.

But suddenly her features, her hair, her poor garments shone with a deified splendor, and there was a sound in the sky above her like the beat of mighty wings. The copper coins turned to broad pieces of shining gold, and the flints became flaming sapphires, rubies and amethysts. About her head blazed an aureole of dazzling splendor.

Then all the people cried out in wonder, and as she rose followed, singing and glorifying her as a saint. She had become more radiantly beautiful than when, with the lovelight in her eyes, she had first greeted him whom she adored, and with a sweet, grave gesture of adieu she passed from their sight, bearing in her tattered beggar's robe the ransom of Foulques the Fair.

It was thus that the Countess Bathilde saved from shame and death the lord of the isles.—From the French For Short Stories.

Patti's Voice.

Patti's voice is of only moderate strength, there being several of greater power among the operatic singers of the present day, but the compass of her tones is extraordinary, reaching to F in alt, and her execution is exceedingly brilliant and polished. Her greatest vocal charm, however, lies in the sympathetic quality of her notes, a quality that instantly impresses every auditor. It is most apparent in the rendition of simple, well known songs, like "Home, Sweet Home" and "Comin Through the Rye," and in these she has achieved such success that, while her repertory comprises over 30 operas, her fame really rests on two or three familiar songs. She first appeared in opera in New York in 1859.

THE WHISTLING WIND.

Whene'er I hear the whistling wind,
Whene'er I see the drifting snow,
What anxious thought disturbs my mind!
So poor the sweetest lass I know!
How can she bide the bitter storm?
The winter, cold and bleak, endure?
She tells me that her wrap is warm—
For she is proud as she is poor.

I think of her whene'er I see
Another robed in richest furs.
There's not another face to me
So fair, so good and kind as hers,
And when I sit beside my fire
I wish her there, for her dear sake,
And, troubled with its vain desire,
It seems as if my heart would break.

God teach her 'tis the high and low,
'Tis not the rich and poor, mate ill,
That she may not refuse me, so
That I may have my perfect will.
God bless her, keep her evermore!
And patient let me hope to see
Time bridging all the diff'rence o'er
She fancies 'twixt herself and me.
—Ralph H. Shaw in New York Ledger.

ONE WAY TO LIVE CHEAPLY.

A Scheme That Was Developed by Gallant Colonel Wilk.

Joseph Tanski, the Polish refugee, narrates many stories of the shifts to which he and his fellow exiles were compelled to resort in order to keep soul and body together. None of these is more curious and interesting than one relating to his friend, Colonel Wilk, who had been decorated by the emperor of the French for gallant service in the French army, but who afterward found himself obliged to live upon 60 francs a month.

It was pretty tight work, and so Colonel Wilk had to confess, but one day he met with a strange bit of good fortune.

He had been out for a walk and was on his way home when a big Newfoundland dog came running down the street, pursued by a gang of boys and men, all armed with sticks. The dog, panting and terrified, ran straight toward Colonel Wilk and took refuge between his feet. The crowd drew near with loud and excited shouts.

"It is a mad dog! Kill him!"

A policeman, more courageous than the mob, stepped forward.

"Halt!" shouted the knight of the Legion of Honor. "The dog belongs to me. It is not mad."

His resolute air and perhaps the red ribbon in his buttonhole made an impression upon the policeman.

"Very well," he said, "since the dog is yours, lead him away."

So said, so done. Colonel Wilk took the dog home, washed and combed it, and then went with it to the butcher's to buy it some scraps of meat. For 25 centimes the butcher gave him a fine lot, and on his way home Wilk bought a few vegetables.

All these bits—bits of meat, bones and vegetables—he put into a pot together with a suitable quantity of water, and out of the pot both he and the dog made a sumptuous dinner.

The problem of living was solved. Day after day, as often as his purse ran low, which was pretty often, he bought bits of meat "for his dog." Nobody was the wiser, and the Polish exile and his dog lived upon 35 centimes a day, and the knight of the Legion of Honor could once more receive his friends like a man of the world.

Mezzofanti's Memory.

Cardinal Mezzofanti had a memory little short of miraculous. Dr. Russell, his biographer, says that the cardinal spoke with the greatest ease 30 languages; that he spoke fairly well 9; that he used occasionally, but not with any fluency, 11 more; that he spoke imperfectly 8, and that he could read 11 more. Taking, in addition, the number of dialects he used, some so diverse from the mother tongue as to constitute a different language, Dr. Russell says that the cardinal was master of no less than 111 different languages and dialects. His German was so excellent that he was taken for a native of Germany, while his French and English were equally pure. Dr. Tholuck heard him converse in German, Arabic, Spanish, Flemish, English, Latin, Greek, Swedish and Portuguese at one of the pope's receptions, and afterward Mezzofanti gave him an original poem in Persian and left him to take a lesson in Cornish. He knew several of the American Indian languages and nearly all the dialects of India.

Only His Buttons Left.

An instance of the great dissolving powers of sulphuric acid is furnished by an accident which recently occurred in the chemical factories at Mulhouse, Alsace. An operative was blown up into the air and fell into a trough filled about three feet deep with sulphuric acid, the temperature of which was found to be 91 degrees C. ten hours after the accident. The death of the man was only proved by the discovery of his caoutchouc respirator, muzzle, two porcelain buttons and other insoluble articles. Everything else had chemically combined with the acid.—London Engineer.

Oscar Wilde.

Oscar Wilde is a walking epigram factory. When an idea comes into his head that seems available as a disguise for truth he writes it down at once. It doesn't matter whether he is at a stately dinner party or in conversation at a club. His pad and pencil are always with him and the pockets of his clothes are never free from slips of paper containing startling paradoxes clothed in crisp language.—New York World.

Papa—Who said tramps made European trips?

A FAMOUS VIOLINIST.

Mr. Bernhard Mollenhauer, the eminent violinist, who is the subject of the following sketch taken from "Music," for October, 1892, will appear at the concert of the Sonoma Valley Band on June 28, 1895. Sonoma people may congratulate themselves on having an opportunity to hear such a celebrity right here at home:

"Mr. Bernhard Mollenhauer has the honor to belong to a very old and distinguished musical family. In 1847 and later there were two musicians, brothers, playing the violin who gained the friendship of Mendelssohn and Schumann at Leipsic. Medelssohn wrote of them: 'There are two brothers lately come to Leipsic who play violin duos in a marvelous manner. The younger, Edward, has the romantic beauty of an Italian Improvisatore; the elder, of a less rugged type, already composes admirably. I have had them in my house frequently, and if the ear were deaf to their playing, the eye would be more than satisfied by the picture they make standing side by side in their dark beauty. And all this from Thuringia.' From Leipsic the brothers journeyed to Hamburg, where Bernhard was born.

"Bernhard Mollenhauer has fully maintained the traditions of the family. He was born in the old free city of Hamburg, in 1850. While he was yet an infant his parents removed to London, where his father was engaged in the orchestra of the Jullien, and with him they came to America in 1851. When the boy was five years old, the traditional family instrument was placed in his hands, his father having procured a little violin from London. Under his father's painstaking instruction the boy made such progress that by the time he was eight years of age his father considered him well enough advanced to appear in public as a 'wonder-child.' From that time to the present, Bernhard Mollenhauer has been before the public.

"Every season found a new engagement for this talented boy. When he was about fourteen he travelled as concert violinist with pianist Willie Pape. In 1865, when he was still only fifteen, he accompanied the lamented Gottschalk in his last American tour. This seems to have been one of the most interesting experiences of his life. Gottschalk was a most fascinating companion, full of spirit quick insight and a very ready wit, and generous to a degree. He was very fond of the young violinist, and in his letters gives expression to many sentiments of good-will and affection, highly interesting now that the hand that penned them is among the immortals.

"The Mollenhauer brothers were thorough musicians, as might be expected of pupils of Spohr, and friends of Medelssohn and Schumann. So the young Bernhard was put to the most severe theoretical studies, score reading and everything which appertains to the knowledge of a good musician and a sound conductor. In 1867 he travelled with the celebrated prima donna, Mme. Anna Bishop, but his greatest triumphs were attained as solo violinist with Gilmore's orchestra in the season of 1879-80. During this tour he made a great effect with the violin concerto of Max Bruch, which was then new.

"Of powerful and athletic build, full of vigor and elasticity, dark, bright eyes, ruddy complexion, and commanding forehead, and handsome, expressive face, he would claim the attention of a Reynolds, a Munkacsy, or a Healy. His imagination is almost constantly aflame. His mind and feelings act as by electricity, being easily kindled and fanned into a flame by the highly wrought motive temperament."

The Morning Star is the title of a new daily which made its appearance in the newspaper firmament of Santa Rosa last Saturday. The first number, which is upon our table, twinkles merrily with local news and editorial brevities. Felix G. Head, late of Kansas but more recently connected with the Courier of Petaluma is the editor and proprietor. We wish the Star success and trust that it will continue to shine with renewed lustre.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The selection from Wagner's Grand Opera "Tannhauser" is of a class of music seldom attempted by amateurs and the fact that our Band has that number on their programme speaks well for their ambition and industry.

Like a Sieve.

The chief function of the kidneys is to separate from the blood, in its passage through them, of certain impurities and watery particles which make their final exit through the bladder. The retention of these, in consequence of inactivity of the kidneys, is productive of Bright's disease, dropsy, Diabetes, albuminuria and other maladies with a fatal tendency. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a highly sanctioned diuretic and blood depurent, impels the kidneys when inactive to renew their sifting function, and strain from the vital current impurities which infest it and threaten their own existence as organs of the body. Catarrh of the bladder, gravel and retention of the urine are also maladies arrested or averted by this benign promoter and restorative of organic action. Malaria, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and dyspepsia also yield to the Bitters, which is also speedily beneficial to the weak and nervous.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER.

PROBABLY FATAL ACCIDENT.

J. Marcarini Thrown Under a Mowing Machine and Badly Injured.

J. Marcarini, a prominent Swiss dairyman of this valley, while driving two horses attached to a mowing machine, on his farm at Sears' Point on Sunday morning last, met with an accident which may prove fatal.

The accident was caused by one of the wheels of the machine coming off which frightened the horses and caused them to run away. Mr. Marcarini was thrown from his seat and becoming entangled in the mower was dragged some distance. His sides and other portions of the body were badly crushed and it is feared he has received internal injures which may cause his death. The injured man was picked up and carried to his house and three physicians—one from Sonoma and two from Petaluma—were sent for with all speed possible. Upon consultation it was decided to send the injured man to St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco. He was accordingly taken to that institution in the afternoon on the south-bound Donahue train, being accompanied by several brother Druids of which order he is a prominent member.

The Band Concert.

As the date of the concert draws near public interest in the event continues to increase. The demand for seats has been much greater than was anticipated and it was found necessary to purchase ten dozen additional chairs. These were mostly sold in advance and those who have not procured seats would do well to get them immediately as the seats left are going very rapidly. The house promises to be the largest ever seen in Sonoma and it is safe to predict that standing room will be at a premium. Arrangements are being made to have a special train run from Glen Ellen, which will be a great convenience for the people of that part of the valley. The following is the programme to be rendered on that occasion :

I.

1. March, "Occidental"..... Sousa
2. Overture. "Light Cavalry"..... Suppe
3. Euphonium solo, Air Varie, "Then You'll Remember Me,"..... Balfe

Dredging Operations on the Jones Tract to be Resumed.

Capt. W. B. Pless of the dredgers Nevada and Empire visited the Jones ranch yesterday to make preparations for resuming dredging operations on lands belonging to the Pacific Reclamation Company of which Senator John P. Jones is the principal shareholder. Capt. Pless, who is a large owner of stock in the Pless Dredging Company, after a years' rest has again resumed the management of the dredgers.

Likely to Recover.

L. Modini while in San Francisco last Tuesday visited Chas. Dal Pogetto and J. Marcarini, patients at St. Mary's Hospital. The latter, who was injured by a mowing machine last Sunday, is in a very dangerous condition but the doctors say they may pull him through. The former is rapidly recovering from the effects of the second operation on the veriform appendix and is now able to sit up. He expects to return home in a few weeks.

Fourth of July.

The various committees having charge of the Fourth of July celebration in this place are hard at work to make the affair a grand success. Everybody is invited to participate in the parade which will start at 10 A. M. sharp. Parties who intend to join in are requested to communicate with Geo. Engler or J. E. Poppe of the Parade Committee.

The New High School Trustees.

Messrs. Robt. Howe and Fred. T. Duhring, the newly-elected High School Trustees, have received their certificates of election and will enter upon the discharge of their duties on July 1st. Superintendent Davis will appoint Trustees for those districts—seven in number—which failed to elect.

Families visiting Sonoma will find the Sonoma House a first-class hotel in every respect. *

AN OUTRAGEOUS RESOLUTION.

Two Thousand Dollars for the College Building

In Ten Annual Installments and Still the People Will Not Own the Old Concern.

At a recent meeting of the High School Board a resolution was introduced by Trustee Frank A. Riser to lease the old college building on Broadway for a term of ten years—he first sought to make it fifteen years—at an annual rental of $200, payable in advance, the first payment to be made July 1st, and what is really surprising the resolution was carried by the votes of other members of the Board who ought to have known better.

In plain language the resolution means the payment of $2,000 for the use of a building in ten installments of $200 each that can be bought outright for $1500.

When the taxpayers of the territory comprising the Union High School District are informed that the property has been on the market the past three or four years for $1500 net to the owner and has went a-begging at that figure they will better understand the proposition. The building has been offered to the High School Board for that sum, but knowing full well that if the proposition to buy the building was submitted to the taxpayers, who ought to have some say in the matter, it would be voted down by them, Mr. Riser seeks to compel the people to pay the owner and agent of the property $2000 in ten installments — in other words he seeks to force the taxpayers to pay $500 more than it has been offered for and still they will not own it in the end. This is very reckless financiering, isn't it? We would ask the introducer of the resolution if that is the way he transacts his own private business affairs ?

One of the Trustees was asked by the editor of this paper why his conferees did not submit the proposition of purchasing the building to the qualified electors of the school districts interested. His reply was that the Trustees felt sure the people would vote it down. Great Cæsar ! if that is the case why in the name of common sense do the Trustees seek to override the wishes of the people who have entrusted into their hands the business management of the High School by seeking to compel them to pay $2000 for a piece of property that they do not want for $1500 and which in the end they will not own?

The introduction and passage of the resolution is really amusing and it is only a matter of surprise that while the Board was about it they did not elect to employ two or three additional teachers and janitors at munificent salaries to keep company with the ten years' lease. If they have the power to do the one they most certainly possess the power to do the other.

Fortunately, however, for the taxpayers this last act of the outgoing Board is nugatory, provided the people do not quietly submit to being imposed upon. The High School Board cannot vest in themselves any such power. They have no right just before going out of office to arrogate to themselves powers which the law delegates to their successors. If this were not so why have annual school elections at all?

BASEBALL.

Napa's Nine Defeat the Sonoma Boys.

An exciting baseball game was played in this place last Sunday between the Napa and Sonoma Nines. The latter club was badly handicapped, as most of their crack members were absent and their places had to be filled by a number of small boys, who were very poor fielders and no batters at all. The game for the Sonoma's was practically played by James Landy, Andy Conlin, Harvey Perkins, Charlie Brundage and George Fouts. Nine innings were played and at the conclusion of the game the score stood 21 to 30 in favor of Napa.

The following runs were made by the Sonoma team: James Landy, 3 ; Conlin, 3; Stevenot, 1; John Landy, 2; Fouts, 3; Brundage, 3; Perkins, 2; Knight, 2; McGill, 2.

Runs by Napa's—Roth, 4; Boggs, 3; Shannahan, 4; Chapman, 4; Wilberger,4; Stratton,2; Townsend, 2 ; Peterson, 4 ; Porterfild, 3.

The feature of the game was the heavy batting by Fouts, Brundage, Landy and Conlin. Fred. Fouts umpired for Sonoma and L. H. Green was scorer. Young Sonoma's lungs was well filled with air and the small boy yelled like a demon when his home team scored a run or made a point in its favor.

Word comes from all quarters that the neatest and most satisfactory dye for coloring the beard a brown or black is Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

THE CARRIGER CASE.

Judge Dougherty's Findings on the Verdict.

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the county of Sonoma, in the matter of the estate of Wm. W. Carriger, deceased; judgement on verdict.

This matter coming on regularly to be heard and tried upon the contest of the proposed will of said William W. Carriger, deceased, dated May 5th, 1892, before a jury duly empanelled, the said contestant being present and represented by counsel and said proponent being also present and represented by counsel ; the trial proceeded, and the evidence being offered and the case submitted to the jury upon the following special issues, and the jury duly returned into Court. Their verdict is as follows:

First—Was William W. Carriger at the time of the making of the will in question of sound disposing mind?—No.

Second—Was William W. Carriger at the time of the making of the will in question a man of weak mind, vacillating and easily led or influenced?—Yes.

Third—Did William W. Carriger execute the will in question solely by reason of an undue influence exerted upon him by Albert Boggs Carriger?—Yes.

Fourth—Did William W. Carriger execute the will in question solely by reason of a fraud practiced upon him by Albert Boggs Carriger? —Yes.

B. M. SPENCER, Foreman.

It is, therefore, upon said verdict, ordered, adjudged and decreed that the said William W. Carriger was not of sound and disposing mind at the time of making the will in question and that the said proposed will, dated May 5th, 1892, was made by reason of undue influence exerted upon him by Albert Boggs Carriger and by reason of a fraud practiced upon said Wm. W. Carriger by Albert Boggs Carriger, and is not the last will and testament of the said William W. Carriger, deceased, and the same is hereby denied probate. It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that the contestant recover her costs herein.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A New Course of Study for Primary and Grammar Schools.

Santa Rosa Democrat.

At the last meeting of the county Board of Education held in Santa Rosa on motion of Mr. Campbell the subjects of arithmetic, reading, U. S. history, geography, language, grammar and spelling, as prepared by Mr. Burk, were adopted for the primary and grammar grades of schools, the vote standing, ayes: Burk, Campbell, Wright, Abshire; No, Davis.

The following resolution was offered by Mr. Wright:

Resolved, That the course of study for the primary and grammar schools of Sonoma county be the same as has this day been approved by the Board, and that it shall consist of work in the following branches, to-wit: Language, arithmetic, drawing, grammar, reading, writing, geography, history, civics, physiology, book keeping and vocal music, and that the same be referred to a committee of one for revision and printing, to be submitted at the earliest possible time.

Mr. Davis offered an amendment that the committee get bids for printing and report to the Board, but the amendment was lost.

Questions of school law for the June examination of teachers were presented by Mr. Davis. After alterations the questions were adopted, Mr. Davis alone voting no. He gave as his reasons for so voting that he wanted a specific number of credits allowed to each and every question, and that he did not approve of the plan whereby applicants were left in doubt as to the number of credits to be allowed for each question proposed by the Board. He also gave notice that he would vote no on the adoption of any questions where a specific number of credits is not designated, questions numbered 4, 5, 8 and 10 in history presented by Messrs Burke and Wright.

The people of our neighboring burg Glen Ellen received quite a treat in the Church benefit intertainment given by Dr. and Mrs. C.C. O'Donnell at their pretty home near that town. A large number of people greeted the performers, some of whom had never been heard by the Glen Ellenites. A neat sum was thus added to the church fund. The programme was as follows: Instrumental solo ; vocal solo, Miss Griswold ; recitation, Dr. Brown ; vocal solo, James B. Small ; vocal solo, Miss Lawrence. There were also other numbers on the programme but we were unable to obtain them.

In the continued use of the eyes in such work as sewing, typesetting, bookeeping, reading and studying, the saving point is looking up from the work at short intervals and looking around the room. This practiced every ten or fifteen minutes relieves the muscular tension, rests the eyes and makes the blood supply much better.

Mrs. G. Lawton and Mrs. George Hooper and children are occupying the Estes residence on Broadway where they will reside this summer.

Enrico Eralde and A. G. Bulotti, delegates from Sonoma Grove, attended the Grand Grove of Druids in session at St. Helena the past week.

Mrs. J. B. Small and family are visiting in Bennett Valley.

One of the most interesting numbers on the programme for the band concert will be "Tone Pictures of the North and South," as it contains many of the old melodies dear to the American heart, among which are "Keller's American Hymn," "Old Zip Coon," "Bonnie Eloise," "Tenting To-night," "Dixie," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "High Level Hornpipe," "Old Dan Tucker" and others as well-known.

Joe Small, Ed Buchan and James Cowan are camping on Russian river.

Do not forget that "if you are trying to take a brilliant light by burning the candle of life at both ends, your friends will not be surprised when the light goes out; neither will you be present to hear them praise your past brilliancy."

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wickersham, formerly the Col. Rogers ranch, Miss Mabel Sellers, the charming young stepdaughter of Mr. Wickersham, was the recipient of a most enjoyable surprise party on Friday evening of last week tendered to her by the students of the High School. The evening was very pleasantly passed by all those who participated. Some indulged in singing, others in playing games and still others engaged in dancing. The music was furnished by A. P. Raines of Petaluma. Several appropriate songs and recitations added much to the merriment of the guests. Choice cut flowers and delicate green foliage were used in decorating which added much beauty to the surroundings. At midnight dainty refreshments were served, after which dancing was resumed until 2 o'clock. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wickersham, Mr. and Mrs. G. McDonell, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Champlin, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Perhaps one of the very oldest monuments is the tablet in memory of a soldier who had his left leg taken off "by the above ball," the actual cannon ball being inserted at the top.

Superintendent Davis has been visiting the public schools of Sonoma and vicinity the past week. This is the gentleman's first visit to the schools down this way since assuming the duties of his office, and he was therefore a comparative stranger to both teachers and scholars. Before taking his leave, however, he made many friends among both who recognize in him one of the most competent School Superintendents Sonoma county has had in many years.

The Class of '95, Sonoma Valley Union High School, were presented with their diplomas by Superintendent Davis at Union Hall on Monday evening. The occasion brought forth a large number of relatives and friends of the young lady and gentlemen graduates, most of whom brought handsome floral designs, baskets of flowers and beautiful boquets to present to the fair seven. Handsome white silk mull, in every way suited to the occasion, was worn by the youngest of the fair graduates, Miss Mabel Lowell. Miss Anna Wadsworth was gowned in white silk and lace the beauty of which was its simplicity, as were all the gowns of the young lady graduates. Miss Mabel Sellers and Miss Florence Thompson also wore white silk and Miss Lizzie Harper was attired in a beautiful gown of white cashmere and ribbons. All the young ladies wore white slippers and carried fans of the same color on which was a bow of yellow ribbon. The hall was decorated with the class colors—gold and white—which interspersed with evergreens and flowers formed a very picturesque scene and reflected credit on the artistic efforts of the decorators. After the usual exercises among which was an able address by our worthy School Superintendent, Hon. E. W. Davis, a farce, "My Lord in Livery," was presented. The leading characters, Lord Thirlmere and Sybil Ambelsy, were well sustained by Stewart Elliott and Mabel Lowell. After the exercises there was dancing, in which about fifty couple participated. It is the intention of several of the graduates to enter the University in the near future. Much credit is due Mrs. H. Appleton, who drilled those participating in the farce and her work was greatly appreciated by the senior class in whose behalf Mr. Weed presented the lady with a beautiful cracker jar.

Hot Weather.

The past week has been a scorcher the thermometer varying between 90 and 110 degress in the shade during the afternoons of every day this week. The nights, too, have been uncomfortably warm. This is the longest hot spell that Sonoma Valley has experienced in many years. Fruit and vegetables have suffered somewhat, but no damage is reported to the vineyards.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1895.

A BAD MARK FROM GOD.

A Little Girl's Original Definition In Court of "What Is a Sin?"

An incident worth recording occurred before Chief Judge Sedgewick of the superior court in the trial of the action brought in behalf of Ida Goldberg to recover $15,000 damages from Edward Ridley & Sons for injuries received in being knocked down and run over by one of the wagons of the firm. The girl had her arm fractured. The defense was that she was responsible for the accident by her own negligence.

Lottie Goldberg, a sister of the plaintiff, who is only 11 years of age, was called to the witness chair to testify to the circumstances of the accident. She was such a little child that she was questioned as to her understanding the nature of an oath, in order to ascertain whether she should be allowed to testify.

"Do you understand the nature of an oath?"

"Yes, sir."

"What is it?"

"It is a swear."

On cross examination the little girl was asked:

"What do you mean when you say it is a swear?"

"Well, it is that I have to tell the truth."

"If you don't tell the truth, what then?"

"That would be a sin."

"What is a sin?"

"A bad mark from God," answered the little one.

The venerable chief judge was visibly touched at this answer of the child and remarked, "This is a very intelligent child and perfectly understands the obligations of an oath." She was then allowed to give her testimony.—New York Recorder.

So Womanly.

That the ways of woman are passing strange was again proved by an incident on a Main street car last evening. A gentleman arose to offer his seat to a lady who had just entered with her little boy. Seeing the seat vacant, she sent the boy to occupy it, while she clung to a strap. She was evidently very tired and would have enjoyed a seat, but preferred to care for her son first. Presently a lady left the car, and the one standing took her seat. Next to her was a serving maid with a pretty baby on her lap. The lady asked permission to hold it, and the request being granted she cooed and talked and played with the child for a half hour, utterly oblivious of her own boy's jealous cries and frantic efforts to attract attention.—Cincinnati Tribune.

Worth's Frankness.

Kate Field says she thinks that Worth made for her the only dress that he ever made of American material. She took him a piece of American satin for the purpose, and at first he refused point blank to touch it. "The manufacturers at Lyons would never forgive me," he said. "They would accuse me of treachery." But eventually Miss Field's persuasion prevailed. Worth was exceedingly frank to his customers. "Choose that color if you like," he said one day to a rich American woman, "but you'll look like a fright, and your husband will refuse to pay the bill."

Yet They Were Not Inflammable.

Farmer—You had a fire at the manse this morning. Any serious loss?

Minister—Yes; ten years' sermons were completely burned.

Farmer (with the memory of many a weary Sunday morning)—Faith, but they made a grand blaze—they were so dry, ye ken!—London Tit-Bits.

Westminster, Cal., March 21, 1894.—Some time ago, on awkening one morning, I found that I had rheumatism in my knee so badly that, as I remarked to my wife, it would be impossible for me to attend to business that day. One application had done the business. It is the best liniment on the market and I sell it under a positive guarantee. R. T. HARRIS. For sale by all dealers.

"DESPERATION."

The New Game of Cards Which Is Interesting Eastern Society.

"Desperation" is a game of cards that is best described as a continuity of sequences, regardless of suit. It is played with three full packs of 52 cards each, and the most convenient number of players is 12, but eight or ten persons will find it a very delightful way to spend an evening. In a party of ladies and gentlemen the better way is for the one six to challenge the other six and then, sitting in couples at the table, alternating the play.

The first duty is to select a banker, who should also act as umpire for the evening. The banker or dealer should then shuffle the three packs of cards together very thoroughly and count two "nests," of 30 cards each, the one to be known as "ladies' nest," the other as "gentlemen's nest," placing them at opposite ends of the table. Each player then receives a hand of six cards, dealt one at a time. These hands are placed face down directly in front of each player.

The play is from the banker to the left, and each player turns up a card, and the play continues until an ace is turned. The privilege of turning the top card of center nests is taken by the first player of each side. When an ace is turned up, it is placed in the center of the table, and the fun begins. The purpose of the game is to exhaust the center nests, and the game is won by the side exhausting their nest first. The sequences in the center of the table are ace high to deuce, while the side sequences or partner's hand are high or low. So that each partner plays on the center sequences, his or his partner's sequences and his own, in effect playing seven hands in a 12 hand game.

The fun of the game is caused by the penalty connected therewith, which is: No player is permitted by word, look, sign, motion or suggestion to indicate to the person playing any play or misplay possible on penalty of forfeiting the play of said player and having the chance of a sequence pass to the next player at table, which would naturally be an opponent.

There is a great amount of sport in this game for a social evening, and it is very popular in the eastern cities. It can be made "progressive" if desired on the same principles as euchre.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.

GENTLEMEN:—Last June I had a scrofula sore to break out on my ankle. It grew rapidly and soon extended from my foot to knee. I got one bottle of your P. P. P. and was agreeably surprised at the result. The entire sore healed at once. I think I have taken nearly every medicine recommended for scrofula and catarrh, and your P. P. P. is the best I ever tried. It cannot be recommended too highly for blood poison, etc.

Yours truly, W. P. HUNTER.
